Russian Reds, Whipped in the Field, Agree to Armistice With the Poles.

SUBMIT TO ALL DEMANDS

Soviet Forces May Concentrate Against Wrangle—Peace in Ireland Nearer—Some Late Developments in Our Presidential Campaign.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Thoroughly whipped by the Poles, the Russian Bolsheviks have signed an armistice with their opponents, and on October 14 hostilities are supposed to cease. The full terms agreed upon at Riga have not yet been given to the public, but enough has been told to show that Poland has won virtually all her contentions. M. Joffe, head of the Russian delegation, was in no position to refuse anything within reason, and indeed he had been instructed to accept almost any terms the Poles might offer.

to the fact that the Russian crop outlook is the worst ever experienced and that in consequence the country faces starvation during the coming winter. Lenin and the other leaders have been making desperate efforts to re-open commercial relations with Great Britain and Italy and to make peace with Roumania, but these efforts have been fruitless so far. The Red soldiers are mutinying and assassinating their officers, and the Russian people generally are in despair.

In Petrograd especially the conditions are terrible, and all the inhabitants who can are fleeing from the city. The Finnish Red Cross has just issued an appeal to the Red Cross societies of the world describing the shocking state of affairs in the former capital. The population has shrunk to about 600,000, and thousands are dying every month of various kinds of epidemics. There is no food, no hot water, no baths, no street cleaning or removal of garbage, and the streets are becoming impassable because the paving blocks are being burned and the water pipes are bursting. The hospitals are overflowing with patients and their equipment is wretchedly inadequate.

"Death," says the report, "stalks on every side, waiting for winter to aid in the grim work of mowing down the silent, hungry sick, and dying thousands. With streets and houses choked with filth that is already spreading spotted and intermittent typhus, the cold weather will finish the task with pneumonia and abdominal typhus."

The allied mission named to handle the dispute between Poland and Lithuania arrived at Suwalki Tuesday to begin work, and on the same day, it is reported, the Lithuanians and Lithuanians stopped fighting.

The Adriatic dispute between Italy and Jugoslavia is in a fair way of settlement, for cabinet members of both nations met Friday in Venice and resumed direct negotiations. Some time ago Lloyd George and Milner, then premier of Great Britain, said if the Jugoslavs and Italians got together it was nobody else's business, which was taken as a warning to the United States government to keep its hands off, whatever may be the disposition of Rome.

If it were not for the people of California and a few jingoes on both sides of the Pacific, the threat of unpleasant relations between America and Japan would quickly fade away. The American associations of Tokyo and Yokohama have urged the Secretary of State to take a stand of joint resolutions urging that Americans "act with sober deliberation and patience, trusting the respective governments to find a solution satisfactory and effective without affronting Japan or sacrificing the principles of equity on either hand."

An acrimonious controversy has arisen between President Wilson and Senator Spencer of Missouri. The latter, in campaign speeches, asserted that the President had ordered the conference, promised Roumania and Serbia that if needed the American army and navy would be sent to their aid. This charge Mr. Wilson branded as absolutely false. The senator retorted that the alleged promise was to be found in the stenographic report of the eighth plenary session of the conference, in which Mr. Wilson was reported to have said to Premier Bratianu of Roumania: "You must not forget that it is for you that the final guarantee of the public peace, if the world is again troubled the United States will send to this side of the ocean their army and their fleet."

Spencer asked the President to produce the report, but Secretary Tammly said on Thursday the President had no stenographic report of the eighth plenary session and, so far as the President knows, there is no such record in this country.

PRESIDENT SETS ARMISTICE DAY

Wilson Orders the Flag at Half-Mast on Sunday, November 14.

TO HONOR HEROIC YANK DEAD

Asks Observance as Token of Nation's Participation in Memorial Services—Selection of Formal Day Must Be Through Legislation.

Washington, Oct. 13.—President Wilson directed that on Sunday, November 14, the American flag be displayed at half-mast on all public buildings and naval and military posts "as a token of the nation's participation in the memorial services held for the heroic American soldiers, sailors, marines and others who gave their lives to their country in the World War."

In connection with the order, the President authorized this statement: "There has been transmitted to me a suggestion that I name Sunday, November 14, as Armistice Sunday, in order that the religious services held throughout the country on that day may be given an especial note of remembrance for the heroic services and sacrifices of those who died for America in the World War."

"The selection of a formal day which shall annually be set aside to commemorate our participation in the World War will some day doubtless be effected through legislation, and already Memorial day, rich in heroic memories, has acquired additional significance as being appropriate also to the commemoration of the heroes of the World War. I am, however, so heartily in favor of the suggestion that has been made that I take this occasion to express publicly my approval of the idea."

"November 14, 1918, will always be memorable as the beginning of the end of the most terrible and destructive of all wars. Our beloved country took a noble part in hastening the arrival of the day hailed by the whole world as the dawn of peace; but close upon the day of victory followed realization of loss, and the anniversary will bring with it solemn thoughts to the minds of every American, memories of the brave men and women who gave their lives to their country in the World War, seems to be eminently fitting and proper, and I commend the suggestion to those who conduct such service."

"That Sunday, November 14, this year being the Sunday immediately following the new year, I shall observe in all our churches by suitable memorial services for the heroic American soldiers, sailors and marines who gave their lives to their country in the World War, and to be eminently fitting and proper, and I commend the suggestion to those who conduct such service."

Great Britain to Take "Certain Action" Should Captives Be Held by Soviet Government.

London, Oct. 9.—Great Britain has threatened to take "certain action" against Soviet Russia if steps are not taken by Oct. 10 for the release of British prisoners held by the Bolsheviks, says the Herald, organ of labor, which prints what purports to be the text of notes exchanged by the British and Soviet governments.

Leonid Krassin, head of the Russian Bolshevik trade mission here, has replied on behalf of the Bolshevik regime that it will promise to fulfill the conditions required by Great Britain when the latter carries out her part of the bargain made last July for the mutual release of prisoners, and cessation of all hostile action.

The number of prisoners in British hands in Egypt, Persia, Constantinople and Batumi, it is declared by M. Krassin, has not been communicated to the Soviet government, which declines to say whether it will return the prisoners.

FIFTY NEW SEATS IN U. S. CONGRESS

South and West Gain Most According to the New Census.

ILLINOIS TO GET THREE MORE

Maine May Lose Seat, but New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan Gain Four Each—House to Consist of 495 Members.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Examination of the final census figures of the country, which place the total population of the Continental United States at 105,883,108, indicates that the West and the South proportionately will gain more in political weight than the East or Middle West, through increased membership in the house of representatives, more votes in the electoral college and in larger delegations to the national political conventions.

This result will obtain whatever basis of apportionment is adopted by congress next winter fixing the size of the next house, which in turn is reflected in the electoral college and the conventions of the big political parties.

As a result of the increase of 13,710,842 in population during the past ten years, 50 new seats must be added to the house to prevent any part of its present representation from being lost.

For the last half century the precedent has been to increase the size of the house so as to prevent loss of existing representation by any state. As a result the house has grown from 243 to 485 members, with only three states—Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont—losing one member each in the last 50 years.

If this precedent is followed this year five additional representatives' seats must be given to California, four each to New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan; three to Illinois and Texas; two to Massachusetts, New Jersey and North Carolina; and one each to Alabama, Arizona, Connecticut, Georgia, Maryland, Montana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Arkansas and Mississippi.

While the present basis of apportionment is 21,877 inhabitants, or its major fraction, to the congressional district, congress can increase the basis to 218,427 without causing any loss. To advance beyond the latter figure will mean that Maine will lose one seat, with the net result of 48 new seats in congress.

Congressional leaders are strongly opposed to any large increase in the house, as they regard the present membership of 485 as too unwieldy.

The present individual population of the various states and the figures for the previous census are as follows:

State	1920	1910
New York	10,284,144	8,115,014
Pennsylvania	8,726,219	7,062,111

TRADE OUTLOOK GOOD

Reserve Board Reports on Business Conditions.

Says Steady Resumption of Manufacturing Reflects Demand for Goods—Freight Situation O. K.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Slashing of prices has caused a revival of business in the retail trade, and a more hopeful outlook for the winter months, it was shown in reports made to the Federal Reserve board from various reserve bank centers.

Steady resumption of manufacturing activity reflects a freer demand for goods, and cancellations of orders are not believed to be as heavy as appeared a few weeks ago.

A distinctly hopeful sign in the industrial trend is the improvement generally noted in the transportation statistics. There is less criticism over lack of cars to move goods. Improved car supply has resulted in better marketing of goods. The quicker handling of freight by the railroads has had a stimulating effect in various fields of industry.

Growth of optimism among business men is reported and business is said to be approaching a greater degree of stability. Reports further state that in many leading districts, despite a decline in the number of orders kept going, some factories are kept going, not alone upon new orders, but upon orders which have accumulated for the past few months.

Officials state that the spirit of hesitancy manifested over price reductions is still in evidence, but not in such a pronounced degree as when the price cutting began. Reports seem to indicate there will be a continuation in revival of buying.

Dr. Pierce manufactured this "Discovery" from roots and barks—corrective remedy, the ingredients of which nature had put in the fields and forests, for keeping us healthy. Few folks or families now living have not at sometime or other used this "Golden Medical Discovery" for the stomach, liver and heart. Over twenty-four million bottles of this tonic and blood remedy have been sold in this country.
